We hereby invite abstracts for papers in phenomenology and related areas of philosophy, such as critical theory, feminist philosophy, and the post-Kantian tradition widely conceived.

This year we especially encourage work that addresses the role and scope of the body in present-day phenomenological research. The topic opens for contributions within classical phenomenology, as well as various fields of ethics, philosophy of culture, cognitive science and politics in contemporary debates. Contributions within the field of gender studies and feminist philosophy are particularly welcome.

We welcome proposals for individual papers from senior researchers as well as from graduate students. Proposals for joint panels on current topics or recently published books will also be considered. All proposals will be evaluated by the society board through a blind-review process.
